

5. The Bald Man and the Fly

One sunny afternoon, a bald man was sitting under a big shady tree. He was humming a happy song and enjoying the cool breeze. His smooth, shiny head looked like a bowling ball.

Everything was perfect... until—BZZZZZZZ!

A little fly flew in and landed right in the middle of his bald head!

SLAP! The man tried to hit it—but missed.

"Nice try, shiny head!" the fly giggled.

"Ugh! Get off my head!" the man shouted, slapping again.

SLAP! Missed again.

"This is the best place to land," the fly said. "So smooth! So shiny! I even get points every time I land!"

"Say one more thing and I'll send you flying to the moon!" the man growled.

The fly hovered just above his head. "Relax! You're just giving yourself a nice head massage!"

SLAP! SLAP! SLAP! The man's head turned red. He was hitting himself over and over—but only hurting his head!

"Bye-bye!" the fly laughed as it flew away.
